

MEDIA RELEASE - JULY 11, 2008

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A HOLE IN ONE

An Edmonton based company is ready to give back to a typical small Alberta energy town. The TerraPro Group of Companies will give ten lucky participants in the annual Fox Creek Oilmen's Tournament a chance to win one million dollars at the Silver Birch Golf Course.

TerraPro is in the remote access business; it's latest focus is on the introduction of industrial green products, mainly environmentally friendly structural matting used for terrain protection during industrial development. This Alberta company is receiving wide spread international attention for its unique solution to access and work platform challenges.

Colin Schmidt, Vice President of Sales & Marketing for TerraPro is excited to be working with Len Pierrard, the organizer of the Fox Creek Oilmen's Tournament. Colin says, "This is a perfect opportunity for an Alberta business to bring big prize money to small town Alberta."

Fox Creek has a 50 year history of energy production with the local gas field as the largest sour gas pool in North America. TerraPro chose the community of Fox Creek because the 2100 people who live and work there are affected by the energy industry on a daily basis, both economically and environmentally.

The tournament runs the weekend of July 18th with the shootout to be held on Saturday the 19th at 12:30pm on the par 3, 8th hole. Ten of the more than 125 golfers will be randomly chosen to take a shot at winning the one million dollars. If someone gets a hole in one, a second million will be offered to the remaining chosen golfers who have not had a chance to shoot.
